

Jamie James

Website Development Plan

October 8, 2026 | Independent speaking, training and consulting brand

The direction

Build a clear personal-brand website that helps an organization understand Jamie’s expertise, choose a service and request availability. Lead with three services. Present a short selection of training themes, while preserving the detailed master catalog as an internal content reference.

Main service	What visitors can request
Speaking Engagements	A speaking engagement for an event, conference or retreat; specific formats and availability require Jamie’s confirmation.
Training & Workshops	Practical education tailored to an audience, organized into eight categories.
Organizational Consulting	Support with leadership, organizational development, programs and staff wellness.

What changes from the first plan

- Replace the long public topic list with 3-5 featured themes per training category. This plan proposes five per category, or 40 display themes.
- Use optional “View all topics” sections for additional approved titles. Do not place all 129 entries on the homepage.
- Keep the 129-topic master catalog internal. Display themes group related offerings; they are not 40 new courses or 40 separate pages.
- Separate the topic catalog from SEO keyword research. Select search targets for each main page before final copy is written.

Brand relationship

Jamie’s website is the primary destination for her speaking, training and consulting inquiries. Include approved biography links to Open Arms Initiative and Open Arms Foster Care. Route therapy and foster-care service requests to the appropriate organization.

Team instruction: This revision supersedes the previous plan’s public catalog presentation. Retain the full source coverage, but implement the simpler visitor experience described here.

Featured themes for organizations and families

Use these short labels on category pages. Each label can introduce several related topics. Jamie should approve the final wording and intended learning outcomes before publication.

Consulting menu

Present five public groups on the Consulting page:

Public group	Source offerings covered
Organizational & Workforce Development	Organizational Development; Workforce Development
Leadership Coaching & Staff Wellness	Leadership Coaching; Staff Wellness Strategy; Nonprofit & Human Services Leadership
Program, Policy & Practice Development	Program Development; Policy & Practice Consultation
Trauma-Informed Organizational Change	Trauma-Informed Organizational Transformation

Clinical wording: Use “Clinical Training” as the launch label. Add approved CE credit details only when Jamie supplies the relevant approval body, credit hours, eligible professions and session-specific information. Topic inclusion alone does not establish CE eligibility.

Simple navigation and focused pages

Navigation: Home | About Jamie | Speaking | Training | Consulting | Resources | Book Jamie. Keep the eight training categories inside the Training menu. Hide Resources until approved content is ready.

Home	Three services, eight category cards, selected topics, biography, proof and booking CTA
About Jamie	Approved credentials, biography and connections to both Open Arms organizations
Speaking	Speaking themes, audience fit, real speaking media and availability inquiry
Training overview + eight category pages	Overview cards lead to distinct audience pages with five featured themes each
Consulting	Five public groups, engagement process and consultation inquiry
Resources - optional at launch	Approved videos and articles; add individual resource pages when content exists
Book Jamie	Shared inquiry form with service, category and topic prefilled where relevant
Privacy, Terms and confirmation	Policies matching actual operations; non-indexed submission confirmation

Scope: 17 launch routes, or 18 with the Resources index. This includes eight category pages, two policy pages and one confirmation page. Individual topic pages, article pages and a downloadable speaker kit are future additions.

Homepage section order

1. Clear hero and portrait → 2. Three service cards → 3. Eight training category cards → 4. Three to six selected themes → 5. About Jamie and Open Arms connections → 6. Speaking video or verified event proof → 7. Booking process and final CTA.

Suggested hero: “Speaking and Training That Strengthen People and Organizations.” Primary button: “Request Availability.” Secondary button: “Explore Training.” Treat this as draft copy for Jamie’s approval.

Category page experience

Audience-specific introduction → five featured themes with short descriptions → optional “View all topics” accordion → approved outcomes and formats → relevant proof or video → FAQs → prefilled inquiry CTA. Shared topics may appear for multiple audiences, using one content record.

Visual direction

Use authentic photography, white space, deep navy or teal and a restrained warm accent. Keep typography readable and mobile navigation simple. Label faith-integrated options clearly. Use testimonials that accurately relate to speaking or training; do not present general agency reviews as event testimonials.

Build the inquiry experience with the website

Implementation approach

Start with the approved sitemap, public theme groupings and form requirements. Design the homepage and one category template, then build the pages and inquiry workflow together. Use Echo5's maintained website stack with reusable components and a small server-side form endpoint. Add a lightweight CMS only if staff need direct editing. Confirm hosting, CMS and email costs before selecting paid services.

MVP exclusions: accounts, payments, a learning management system, automated certificates and a large custom administration platform. No separate software build is needed for this phase.

Content structure

Maintain Service, Category, Display Theme, Topic and Media records. Each topic has one stable ID, a primary category, audience tags, source aliases and approval status. Each display theme references topic IDs. Include featured and publish controls so the master catalog never automatically becomes the public menu. Store SEO titles and descriptions on pages, separately from topic labels.

Booking form and delivery

Required: name, email, organization or individual, service interest and request summary. Optional: phone, category/topics, audience size, preferred or flexible date, event location, approved delivery options and budget range. Prefill known choices from topic buttons. Ask users not to submit confidential patient or case details.

Validate server-side, protect against spam and duplicates, deliver to the approved booking inbox, confirm successful acceptance and send an acknowledgment. A request does not confirm a booking. On delivery failure, show an honest error and approved alternate contact, or retain a protected retry record. Define inbox ownership, follow-up responsibility and inquiry retention before launch.

Keyword and content workflow

The 129-topic catalog is a content inventory, not a researched keyword list. The SEO team should prepare a page map with search intent, one primary phrase, related phrases, title, H1 and content outline. Candidate wording includes "leadership development workshops," "trauma-informed care training" and "mental health training for teachers." These examples have not been validated for demand or competition.

Prioritize booking intent for service pages. Use educational questions in FAQs and resources. Create distinct category copy and internal links; do not create 129 thin topic pages. Use factual metadata and structured data, one canonical URL per page, a sitemap and indexable public content. Keep form text and personal details out of analytics.

Open Arms transition

Inventory current URLs and traffic before changes. Retain useful organization-specific training summaries and link to Jamie's relevant pages. Redirect only retired pages to closely matched replacements. Preserve therapy and foster-care destinations, and avoid copying the full catalog across all sites.

A practical four-week rollout

Phase	Owner and completion target
Week 1 - scope and design	Project lead + Jamie approve navigation, 40 display themes, consulting groups, domain and brand direction. Designer delivers homepage and category layouts.
Week 2 - core build	Developer implements reusable pages, content records and working inquiry flow. Content team drafts the main service and category pages.
Week 3 - content and integration	Add approved media, outcomes, FAQs and page metadata. Complete the SEO page map and agreed Open Arms links or redirects.
Week 4 - review and launch	QA tests mobile use, accessibility, forms and navigation. Jamie approves final content. Launch, verify inquiry delivery and hand over editing instructions.

Estimate: three to four weeks after essential assets and decisions arrive, subject to team capacity and review turnaround. This is a planning estimate, not a guaranteed deadline.

Inputs needed from Jamie

- Approved name, credentials, biography, real photos and any speaking video; permission to use testimonials and organization logos.
- Priority audiences and five featured themes per category; approved topic summaries and learning outcomes.
- Domain choice, booking inbox, contact details, travel area, formats, session durations and fee-display preference.
- CE documentation if credits will be advertised; clarify “Childhood Experiences and Their Effects” and the intended scope of faith-based parenting.

Launch checklist

- Homepage shows three services and eight category cards. Category pages show only five featured themes initially; additional topics are optional and expandable.
- All 138 original entries remain accounted for through 129 unique records and source aliases. Public grouping does not delete underlying capabilities.
- The 40 public theme labels and five consulting groups are approved; shared topic IDs prevent duplicate content records.
- Forms pass successful-delivery, failure, validation and duplicate-submission checks. Staff confirm the acknowledgment and inbox workflow.
- Check mobile layouts, keyboard operation, accordion accessibility, contrast, captions, links, metadata, indexing and agreed redirects.
- Confirm production analytics measures successful inquiries without personal data; verify the live booking path and document rollback and ownership.

Source and revision note

Based on the supplied Training and Speaking topics document, the reviewed first development plan and the agreed simplified catalog direction. The appendix retains internal topic titles for content planning. It is not website copy, a keyword research report or proof of CE approval.

Duplicate and overlap handling

138 original entries became 129 unique records. Consolidations cover repeated Secondary Traumatic Stress and Healthy Boundaries, plus overlapping faith integration, trauma-informed parenting, relationships, stress management, resilience, youth identity and mental-health warning-sign titles. Secondary Traumatic Stress remains available to clinicians through an audience tag. Source aliases preserve the original wording.

Burnout, compassion fatigue, secondary traumatic stress and vicarious trauma remain distinct. Clinical, school and ministry variants remain separate where their audience and objectives differ. Display themes group topics for navigation; they do not merge clinical concepts or promise a fixed course.
